BUSINESS

Rosslyn Business Community Growing by Leaps and Bounds

The past several months have been monumental for Rosslyn, with a host of new companies moving in. Most widely reported has been Nestlé USA's plan to relocate its corporate headquarters from Glendale, Calif., to Rosslyn's 1812 North Moore, where they will occupy 40 percent of the building and bring 750 jobs. Other new Rosslyn businesses include the national business advisory firm Grant Thornton, the fast-growing tech company Snagajob, the Virginia-based coworking community and small-business accelerator Eastern Foundry, and the Grocery Manufacturers Association, a leading trade association that will move from Eye Street in Washington, D.C. "There has been tremendous momentum for new leasing as blue-chip, Fortune 500 companies and emerging tech companies continue to choose Rosslyn," says Rosslyn BID President Mary-Claire Burick. "We know they will find the neighborhood fun and engaging, and will form professional and social relationships that will help them and their employees thrive." More at rosslynva.org/news/articles.
